Testimonial by Dr. K. Narasimhan

Director, Sri Sathya Sai Mobile Hospital

I deem it a privilege and a matter of great joy to give this testimonial to Apeiron Health Care. I have been fortunate to have been selected by Bhagawan Sri Sathya Sai Baba to head this unique, free, high quality, holistic outreach health care service. Through this mission spanning over 2 decades, we have been providing regular, free, holistic, and comprehensive healthcare services to nearly five lakh beneficiaries across more than three hundred villages bringing together Multiple Specialist consultations, diagnostics (lab, x-ray, ultrasound contained in a big diagnostic bus called Sanjeevini), free medicines, and advanced surgical interventions (arranged at base hospitals) under a single integrated healthcare model.

Over the years, one of our greatest challenges has been creating healthcare infrastructure wherever we serve. Every day, our teams transform village schools and community buildings into temporary healthcare facilities, setting up consultation rooms, pharmacies, and treatment areas from scratch. While our commitment to service has never wavered, the process requires tremendous manpower, logistics, and time.

It was therefore truly remarkable for me to witness the innovations developed by Apeiron Healthcare.

The Apeiron Mobile Hospital is far more than a vehicle—it is a complete healthcare ecosystem on wheels. Through its innovative hydraulic expansion technology, the platform unfolds into multiple fully self-contained clinical units equipped with power systems, computers, diagnostics, and patient-care infrastructure. What previously required hours of preparation can now be achieved within minutes, enabling healthcare professionals to focus entirely on patient care from the moment they arrive.

In my experience of serving rural communities for more than twenty years, very few innovations have addressed healthcare delivery challenges with such practicality, vision, and effectiveness.

I am given to understand that Apeiron has come up with a Mobile Operation Theatre too. The concept of taking surgical capability closer to underserved populations has the potential to significantly transform healthcare accessibility. By enabling minor to medium surgical procedures in the field, stabilizing patients, and facilitating seamless transfer through advanced life-support systems for higher-level care when required, this innovation addresses a critical gap in healthcare delivery.

What distinguishes Apeiron Healthcare is its understanding that healthcare is not merely about equipment or mobility—it is about bringing together the four essential pillars of healthcare: Doctors, Diagnostics, Drugs, and Infrastructure. Apeiron has successfully integrated all four into a deployable, scalable, and patient-centric solution.

I often say that my only regret is that I came to know about Apeiron Healthcare several years after its inception since it greatly simplifies the arrangements required for delivery of the service.

I firmly believe that Apeiron Healthcare has created a model that deserves serious consideration by State Governments, Central Government agencies, healthcare institutions, and humanitarian organizations across India. The scalability, efficiency, and impact of these solutions make them uniquely suited to address the healthcare needs of underserved rural populations on a large scale.

As someone who has dedicated more than two decades to taking healthcare to the doorsteps of rural India, I can confidently say that Apeiron Healthcare represents one of the most meaningful innovations I have encountered in the field of mobile healthcare. Their work is not simply about building advanced medical vehicles—it is about removing barriers between patients and quality healthcare.

I congratulate Mr Srinivasa Prasad Dasari, Mrs. Anithaa Madala and the entire Apeiron Healthcare team for their vision, dedication, and unwavering commitment to healthcare innovation. I am confident that their pioneering work will leave a lasting legacy in advancing accessible, affordable, and high-quality healthcare for communities across India and beyond.
